

Student Spotlight: Hailey Saylor

This summer, near the end of July, Hailey Saylor went to Air Camp. Hailey had gotten a very generous scholarship to go to Air Camp from the Callahan family. Air Camp goes on at Wright State University. She got to stay in the dorms at Wright State for five nights. She went all over Dayton and even got to go to the Air Force base at Wright Patt. There were students from all over the country, even some kids from as far as Colorado, South Dakota, and California. There were also teachers, professors, and veterans from the Air Force, to help teach them.

At Air Camp, students learn all about aviation and how and what makes a plane fly. They learned about all of the parts of a plane and what they do, what it is like to be a pilot in the Air Force and what goes on around the base. Additionally, they also learned about what goes on behind the scenes at an airport. Hailey learned how to plan a flight and how to navigate through midair.

Hailey said that Air Camp really got her into aerospace and aerodynamics. She said that Air Camp helped her grow as a person and develop her character. She also said that when she left, she felt older and more responsible. Hailey really enjoyed Air Camp and recommends it to anyone who plans on entering a career involved with aviation.
